Your student has been instructed to fill out this 2-way comparison chart with as many points as he remembers from his studies. He should include at least one point per box.

	POOR FAMILIES	WEALTHY FAMILIES
FOOD	• Poor families' diet consisted of thin soups made from cabbage and broth, eggs, coarse bread and milk, and wine since water was unsafe to drink	• Wealthy families enjoyed a more varied diet that consisted of wild game, seafood, and vegetables flavored with all kinds of spices, as well as wine since water was unsafe to drink
CLOTHING	• Clothing of ordinary people was more functional than decorative. They had few and simple garmets made from sturdy, woolen cloth or linen	• Wealthy people showed off their wealth and importance by the elaborate clothes they wore. Fabrics such as velvet, silk, and furs often made up their garments
HOUSES	• Poor families lived in very small homes built with mud, timber, and thatch • Homes relied on a small fire for warmth and cooking, though few of them had chimneys	• In order to show off their wealthy status, rich people lived in ornately decorated houses called palazzos with separate bedrooms and private baths
EDUCATION	• Poor families did not have the time to provide a formal education. A boy might have the opportunity to apprentice with a skilled craftsman, but most likely a girl would marry young and receive no education other than learning to run a household	• Boys had a well-rounded education with the emphasis on classical learning: a wide variety of subjects including grammar, rhetoric, history, science, poetry, art, and literature • Girls also received an education with a particular focus on music and literature
RECREATION	• Poor families enjoyed music as entertainment and may have also enjoyed games and sports to a limited degree since they did not have a lot of leisure time	• Along with music, wealthy families enjoyed a wide variety of leisure activities that included games like chess, roulette, and fox and geese, as well as sports such as falconry
